

Ornamental Iron is beautiful!

ORNAMENTAL IRON has a fitting place in any style of architecture, ranging from the most traditional to the most modern. Ornamental Iron belongs! It's a universal, timeless building material—one of the few materials that lends itself equally to outside and interior work.

Yes, massive or delicate, conservative or colorful... as the mood dictates... Ornamental Iron is always fitting to requirement and circumstance. There's no end to the possibilities of its uses.

No longer is Ornamental Iron thought of as material limited to New Orleans ... or the Deep South. You'll find it in use EVERYWHERE, and appropriately so. What other building medium is quite as versatile!

Illustrated in this booklet are examples of diverse ironwork uses. Interior jobs are becoming more and more the thing. Besides interior railings there are room dividers, cornices, "frames" for a distinctive feature of the room . . . many uses, depending on your own imagination.

300

There are two basic kinds of Ornamental Iron: wrought iron and cast iron. Cast iron is grillework made with Ornamental Cast Iron castings which come from a mold. Liquid-hot iron was poured into the mold. The result is a well-designed casting, showing whatever the mold was made for . . . flowers, leaves, scrolls, figures.

Wrought iron is different. It is made of ribbon-like strips of metal which are hand-bent (hand-wrought) into scrolls and curly-ques. The iron work is made up from these hand-wrought scrolls.

Regardless of a house's style and size, there's a BEAUTIFUL APPLICATION OF ORNAMENTAL IRON . . . just made for it!

GRAPE

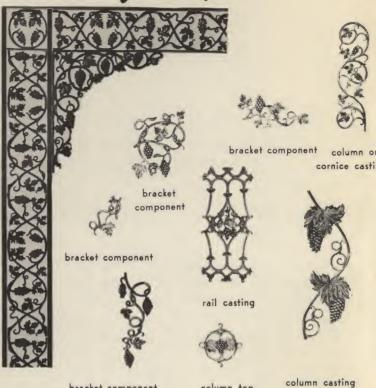

This 17th-Century design-originally named" Italian Vineyard", is a replica of the famous Italian White Grape. The modern variations of this theme are quite close to the originals except that today's castings have been scientifically improved—they are cleaner, smoother and excellently detailed. The Grape Design is very appropriate for many different types of architecture.

PONTALBA

These cast iron patterns were originated in 1848 for the Pontalba Building in New Orleans' French Quarter. It's an apartment building—the oldest in the United States. The Pontalba pattern is relatively simple in design -is adaptable to almost any Ornamental Iron installation in modern or period architecture. It embraces the scrolls, rosettes and kindered wrought iron patterns from the "smiths" of Old England.

ROUND-THE-TREE BENCHES AND PLANTERS

For Shady Conversation

Shady, shaded from the sun that is.

There are two places in your yard,
for this beautiful accessory...

one is in a spot where it is truly ornamental,
such as your front yard,

or in a prominent place in your garden.

Hardly a guest will fail to comment on the uniqueness of it. The other place for the TFC Round-The-Tree Bench is in a secluded and quiet spot where you can go to meditate and think things out, surrounded by the beauty of a peaceful setting.

Also beautiful when used to surround a planting.

CURLY OAK

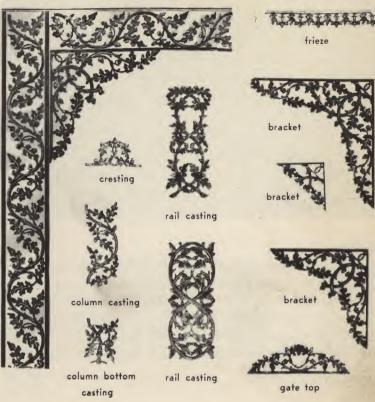

Known to many as the "Acorn" pattern, this group originated in New Orleans, is patterned after the Red Oak tree. Curly Oak grillework is especially good in wooded environment of suburban homes. It is one of the most popular patterns of all.

SMOOTH OAK

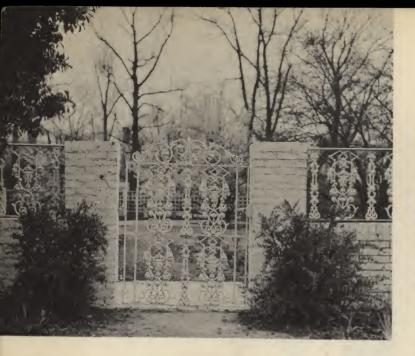

A part of the old Acorn pattern, Smooth Oak dates back to New Orleans' original grillework. This group differs noticeably from the Curly Oak design; it has long, smooth leaves—is patterned from the Live Oak tree. An excellent pattern on modern ranch-type homes. Such applications are beautiful.

ROSE

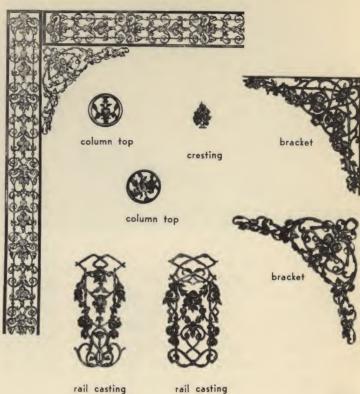

Roses have always been one of the most popular flowers with everyone. These rose designs are accepted with the same enthusiasm. Grillework made with Rose castings is as pretty as you could hope for. You'll be proud to own these variations which were perfected in the Deep South, now used in all sections of the nation.

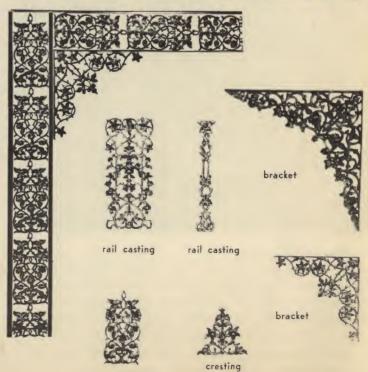

PASSION FLOWER

This series of Ornamental Cast Iron castings is copied from probably the oldest decorative ironworks known to man. The Passion Flower design received its name from a fancied resemblance of certain parts of the flower to the instruments of the Crucifixion. It has a very full, yet delicate pattern. You can be proud to have this lovely lace-work on your home. It's outstanding.

MORNING GLORY

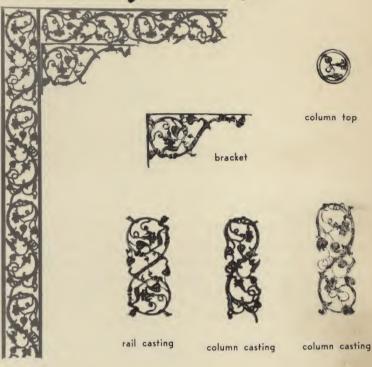

It's a beautiful flower . . . and the castings are just as attractive. The reproduction is a faithful one. Although the Morning Glory design was only recently introduced to this continent, its popularity has grown fast. Morning Glory designs are more massive, really regal in appearance.

BIRD OF PARADISE

The Bird of Paradise is another of our very old designs. Its design is very similar to the Pontalba in outward appearance but it has more intricacy and detail. The head of a Bird of Paradise starts each scroll and continues into a wheat pattern which is supposed to represent the wheat field the bird is in. Its beauty appeals to many homes owners.

DOGWOOD

Want something in the way of delicate, lightweight grillework? Dogwood is one of your best pattern to select from. It's airy and beautiful. Dogwood has been used on interiors a lot, too. Whatever its application, it has proved itself as a desirable design, appealing to home-owners everywhere as well as passers-by.

MISCELLANEOUS

In the miscellaneous group are varying types of -Ornamental Cast Iron castings . . . ranging from very ornate to simple, modern versions. Used often in gates and rails, "vents" in brick walls . . . and other useful ways. "Miscellaneous" is somewhat a mis-nomer . . . because they are all faithful reproductions of Old Country patterns.
